SDTANEWS

SEWING DEALERS TRADE ASSOCIATION

The trade publication for the independent retailer August 2016 | ISSUE 133 www.vdta.com

The Latest & Greatest Products
from Brother International Corporation!

- Planting Your Sales Garden with
 Hether Miles-Fiess
- China Feiyue
 Sews Wearable
 Technology

PR1050X
10 9 8 7 8 5 4 3 2 1

Intrepreneur Pro

explore the difference 10 makes

Introducing the New Entrepreneur Pro X PR1050X

brother

VDTA-SDTA, 2724 2ND AVE., DSM, IA 50313 ADDRESS SERVICE REQUESTED

PRSRT STD
US POSTAGE PAID
DES MOINES, IA
DEBMIT NO 1803

How Do You Create a Service Culture?

isney excels at customer service because the company looks at everything through the eyes of the customer. At each step of the customer's experience, ask what you are doing to or for the customer. Then, for each step, ask yourself what mediocre service looks like and what excellent service would look like.

Creating a service culture means several things:

- 1. Top management must value customers and employees. I am not talking about the baloney in the annual report. It must be driven strategically. You must be willing to invest in developing highperforming employees.

 At ea custome

 Custome

 Custome

 Custome

 Custome

 Custome

 Textupe of the custome

 Custome

 Textupe of the customers and employees.

 Custome

 Custome

 Custome

 Textupe of the customers and employees.

 Custome

 Cu
- 2. Make it easy for customers to do business with you. In the U.S., most firms use IVR (Interactive Voice Response) so they do not need to talk to customers. Many outsource their call center to other countries. You need a live person to answer the call in 1 or 2 rings, 24/7. Too many organizations are more focused on cutting costs than keeping customers.

3. All employees must be trained with a new customer service program every 4 months. It must be different and new. Get over the idea that there is a magic program that will change employee behaviors and attitudes for life. For example, Progressive Insurance creates new commercials every month. The most expensive part of advertising is the TV time. The most expensive part of training your staff is labor time. Whatever tools you use must be really good. I believe very few organizations care about results.

- 4. Follow service leaders like Amazon and Metro Bank London. Go to their websites and sign up under Investor Relations for the daily and weekly press releases. Jeff Bezos and Vernon Hill are light years ahead of almost all CEOs in the world.
- 5. Master empowerment. Enable every employee to make fast, empowered decisions in favor of the customer. Too many weird things happen every day. Teach principles and empower your employees.

"At each step of the customer's experience, ask what you are doing to or for the customer."

According to Brad Cleveland, Co-Founder and Senior Adviser of the International Customer Management Institute (ICMI), a recent Gallup poll found that when both customers and employees are engaged, companies see a 240% increase in performance-related outcomes, which goes to show that customer service "really matters."

About the Author: John Tschohl is an international service strategist and speaker. He is the founder and president of the Service Quality Institute in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Described by Time and Entrepreneur magazines as a customer service guru, he has written several books on customer service, including Moving Up. The Service Quality Institute (http://www.customer-service.com) has developed more than 26 customer service training programs, including Remember Me, that have been distributed and presented throughout the world. John's monthly strategic newsletter is available online at no charge. He can also be reached on Facebook, LinkedIn, and Twitter.

